

“HORSESHOES, HAND GRENADES, AND DANCING”
2019 Ongoing

Three toilet seats, commercial ones at that, in the men’s bathroom, the seat of course is the thing between the sitter and the bowl, and in this case, the seats are decouped with Scott Toilet Paper wrappers and hung as decorative trophies. But often these seats, these shields of the bowl, are also part of the target. Out of impoliteness, boredom, laissez faire that seat is often not raised while the business of urinating is done from the standing position. Aim, fire . . . hit, miss, finish. Close is considered almost as fine as a miss . . . Kinda like the game of Horseshoes, or the efficacy of a Hand Grenade . . . Dancing is another story.