

LES DEUX MAGOTS ET CAFÉ DE FLORE: CHOICE

2017 Ongoing

We all make choices, good, bad, and other . . . What political party we side with, what channel we watch, what color we wear, which restaurants we frequent, even when they're seemingly the same and/or conversely easily differentiated. This piece addresses that choice between the two restaurants, Les Deux Magots and Café de Flore which historically, have been the bee hives of different camps of cognoscenti, artists, movements . . . One becoming the place to be, followed by the other. As well as about how the spaces act as a platform for sharing something, even if it's just a table over which ideas are discussed or images imparted . . . No different than FB, twitter, and Instagram maybe, but still living relics of in-between, not electronic posts.