

“OUT, OUT DAMN SPOT”—Lady Macbeth, (Misquoted), Macbeth, Shakespeare
1992 Ongoing

“Out, damn spot! Out I say!” . . . Lady Macbeth has regrets. Ambition—so seductive, so easily attractive, so seemingly, purely inviting . . . Or is it . . . A hot towel, warm, seductive, attractive, inviting, (I want one too) or is it . . . Now the recipient has regrets . . . “OUT, OUT DAMN SPOT” is a performance where hot towels are passed and recipients warm themselves, wipe, and clean, and then are at the end of a bad joke, or cold towel. What to do with it . . . Trash it, drop it, leave it behind, get rid of it . . . Out, Out Damn Spot indeed.
